SPN 411. This advanced course will explore the rich tradition of short stories in early modern Spain. We will investigate the transition from an oral to a written culture and the importance of printing as a driver for this transition and other significant cultural changes. We will contextualize the act of narrating and / or read fiction and explore the -didactic/comic/critical/satirical- role of these short stories. Class is conducted in Spanish.