- Permission of your academic advisor(s) and a faculty sponsor are required. All independent study/research must be completed during the term in which the course is registered. No retroactive credit will be granted.
- Independent study/research experiences may be registered until the add/drop period concludes, typically the eighth class day of the term. Consult the academic calendar for an exact date.
- Each independent study/research project will be defined by the student and guided by a faculty sponsor. The outcomes of the project may be written or presented at the discretion of the faculty sponsor.
- It is expected that 9-12 hours of study per week, or 126-168 total hours, are required for each course unit earned.
- No more than four (4) course units of individualized instruction (internship, practicum, independent study/research, or special arrangement) may contribute to the 34 course unit degree requirement, except as required by special programs, such as the Dana Associates program.
- Independent study/research may not be used to satisfy a general academic requirement.
- All independent study/research will be assigned traditional letter grades, A through F.
- You may enroll for two (2) independent study/research experiences during the same term, but only one (1) independent study or research experience may be enrolled concurrently with an internship or practicum in any term.
