Emily Stockton-Brown graduated from Muhlenberg College in 2012 with Magna Cum Laude, Phi Beta Kappa, and Phi Sigma Iota Honors. While at Muhlenberg, she primarily studied English and French, the latter during time abroad in Rennes, France at The Université de Haute Bretagne.

At Muhlenberg, Emily worked as a Phonathon caller, an English & Biology tutor, and as a Writing Assistant within three First-Year Seminars. But it was while serving as an embedded tutor in an advanced French course that she became interested in the omnipresence of translation, not just between languages but also between intention and statement.

After graduation, Emily began working for Muhlenberg College as the Assistant Director of the Writing Center, a position she currently holds.
