The United States Department of Education requires colleges and universities to disclose the information listed below for any financial aid eligible program that “prepares students for gainful employment in a recognized occupation.”

1. Standard Occupational Classification (SOC) codes
2. On-time graduation rates
3. Cost of the program to include books and fees
4. Placement rate for students completing the program
5. Median loan debt incurred by students who have completed the program

If a program has less than 10 graduates per year, due to privacy issues, the Median Loan Debt and the On-Time Graduation rates are not reported to the public.
