Guidelines to remember:

Attendance and Participation:

Attendance will be taken and is expected at each scheduled class meeting. Students who are absent more than four times without justification will be penalized on the final grade. Comply with Muhlenberg’s Academic Behavior Code in all work for this course (consult the Student Handbook for details). Your active presence in class is one of the requirements for this course. Be prepared to participate in class discussion and answer questions on assigned topics.

Depending on how well you prepare the material for class discussion, there may be short quizzes of a "convince me" nature. Those will consist of multiple choice, true/false, or brief essay questions and will count as points for class participation.

Why study Russian culture?

For many centuries Russia has been enigmatic for the West. Twice this century this area of the world has witnessed revolutionary changes that have not only profoundly affected the lives of its citizens, but have also influenced the course of world history. With the fall of communism and the end of the Cold War, it is now very important to understand this vital region. A study of culture is one of the best ways of learning to understand "the soul" of the Russian people.

What are we going to do in this class?

We are going to learn about and discuss selected topics in Russian intellectual thought, art, architecture, literature, music, theater, and film from the Empire to contemporary Russia. We will focus on the origins and evolution of the Russian culture as a result of the countries political, social, and regional dynamics. In the course of the semester, you will write three papers (library research) and prepare one 15-minute in-class presentation as part of your team research project. Further details will be discussed in class.

Major Project Topics:

· The elements of old Russian culture: customs and beliefs in art.
· Imperial Russia: material culture in the 17-19 centuries; the best-known names in literature, music and art.

· Russia in the 20th century: from tsars to commissars. What's next?

Your Papers:

Each of the three papers listed in the syllabus should be a 3-4 page (typed, double-spaced) essay in MLA or APA format (make sure that the format is consistent across the entire paper, i.e. the title page, bibliography, etc.) The topics for those projects will be discussed and finalized in class. In your essays, present an argument (or thesis) in response to the topic question. It's a good idea to introduce your reader to that argument in the paper's introductory paragraph. In other words, you need to present a thesis statement early in the paper.

The papers will be graded with by the following criteria:

1. Title page - 5 pts.
2. Description of research (limited to 300 words) - 25 pts.
3. Introductory paragraph - 15 pts.
4. Body: describe the subject -- 30 pts.
5. Concluding paragraph: describe what you have learned from doing this project-- 15 pts.
6. Bibliography (not less than five entries) -- 10 pts.

Your Presentation:

Your final presentation for this class will be a team project. You will work in groups of four on topics of your choice. Confirm the topic, the group of your classmates, and the date of your presentation by March 3. Your oral in-class presentations will be graded by the following criteria:

1. Visual aids: your choice of pictures, multimedia, posters, etc. -- 25 pts.
2. Ability to manage given time (around 10 min. per student; total time of team presentation should not exceed 20 min). -- 10 pts.
3. Interesting form of presentation -- 20 pts.

4. Ability to demonstrate how the content of your presentation ties in with the project of the team -- 30 pts.

5. Ability to keep the audience interested in the subject -- 15 pts.

Submit a paper on the topic of your oral presentation no later than May, 8.

The paper will be graded according to the guidelines listed in “Your Papers” section of the syllabus.
