Name Power

Ferdinand M. de Leon and Sally Mcdonald

What we call overselves (examples)

The labels we use affect how others perceive us

“those in power define the rest”

Language is Political: Nicknames for groups of people retain for generations the power to call up stereotypes.

Black or African Americans?

Native Americans or American Indians?

Asian Americans?

Hispanic, Latino or Chicano?

Minority, Non-White or People of Color?

White, Caucasian or Euro-American?

Why Can’t we all just be Americans?
